

PRINCE GETS RECIPE FOR GOOD COCKTAIL

Some One Gives Carol a Shaker But Opinions Differ on Ingredients.

LEAVES ON AQUITANIA

George Roussos, Greek High Commissioner to Turkey, Also Aboard.

Before Prince Carol of Rumania and his retinue boarded the Cunard liner Aquitania yesterday for home, some body gave the Prince a cocktail shaker as a souvenir and because the donor said there was no more use for it here.

Knowing that in a few hours he would have all the ingredients at hand the Prince sought recipes for a real good cocktail. So many were offered by kind friends, and they argued so hotly over the merits of their respective offerings that he decided to settle all arguments by following some printed authority. All agreed that "The Bartender's Guide" should be the criterion. Then there ensued several hours of frantic searching for a copy of the once handy manual. Hotel attaches scoured the city's bookshops in vain. A copy was finally obtained in the office of the Hotel Review just before the Prince's party left.

Another distinguished passenger aboard the Aquitania was George Roussos, Greek Minister to the United States, who is returning to Athens to become Greek High Commissioner in Turkey. He expressed feelingly his appreciation of America as he left.

Scores of Rumanians and Americans interested in his country were at the Cunard pier to bid Prince Carol good-bye. Among them were William Nelson Cromwell, chairman of the Rumanian Relief Committee in this city; N. A. Lahovary, Rumanian Charge d'Affaires in Washington; T. T. Weston, Rumanian Consul-General in this city; John Kores, Consul; Capt. Paul Stroe, Rumanian Commissioner here; Capt. John Kaba, formerly of the American army, and John Helger, manager of the Rumanian banking firm of Mamoroch & Co. The well wishers made the pier head brilliant with color, waving Rumanian and American flags as the liner backed out into the stream.

Before leaving the Waldorf Prince Carol conferred the order of the Crown of Rumania upon his host, Oscar Tschirky, "Bill" Nye, guardian of royal visitors to the country, and upon six policemen and several secret service men who watched over him during his stay in the city.

Also on the Aquitania were Mrs. Finlay Barrell of Chicago, D. W. Cooke, associate director of the Cunard Line, and Mrs. Cooke; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Don Levine, G. A. Gaston, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tate, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lilly, Mr. and Mrs. George Middleton, Jose Pardo, former President of Peru, and Mrs. Pardo; Viscount and Viscountess Maitland.

The White Star liner Olympic, which left yesterday for France and England, had among her passengers Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sablin, Sir E. Mauford Rumbold, British Minister of Shipping; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pillsbury of Minneapolis, Mrs. Martin Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Cortland Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. C. Ledyard Blair.

Though the number of vessels leaving for Europe yesterday was large, six vessels leaving the Chelsea pier, the Drottningholm of the Swedish-American Line, leaving from the foot of West Fifty-fifth street, and the Rotterdam of the Holland-America Line leaving from Hoboken, the total number of passengers was comparatively small. The total passenger list was not much more than 5,000.

The long lines of passengers that have been seen at the steamship offices all summer were missing and the clerks who, up to a short time ago, had been busy night as well as day, seeking accommodations for all who demanded them, had plenty of time to spare to assist in loading the passengers' baggage aboard the departing craft.

It was noticeable how much the wartime regulations prohibiting the visiting of ships by friends of the voyagers have been removed. Hundreds of persons swarmed at will and without question to all parts of the pier, and, despite the delay over some of the sailings, the stewards had a hard job of clearing the docks of visitors, so many had gone aboard the liners to say goodbye to their friends.

THIEVES ROB HOME OF GEMS AND LIQUOR

Neighbor Sees Escape of Burglars With Loot

Burglars who forced a cellar door with a screwdriver, and instead of a flashlight carried candles to light their way, ransacked the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace S. Cory, at 58 Park place, Newark, Thursday night. The clothing of Mrs. Cory, who is a daughter of the late John Dillingworth, steel man, was stolen, with belongings of Mr. Cory, including jewelry and liquor, according to the report furnished the police.

The Corys are at Deal, N. J., for the summer. Thursday night Warren E. Faernicht, who lives in the adjoining house, saw two men climb the stone wall between the houses. At his shouts they ran across a tennis court and disappeared. They dropped two shotguns and a flask of whiskey in their flight.

Mr. Cory notified the police of the robbery yesterday. He did not supply an estimate of the loss. Mrs. Cory was the widow of Alfred N. Dairymple, Republican leader of Essex county. She was in mourning for her father, who died about four months ago, and most of her clothing was in the house and was stolen.

POLICE DEPARTMENT MAY CONTROL TAXIS

More Stringent Regulations Urged for Cabs.

A drive against excessive taxicab fares and alleged infractions of city rules by taxicab drivers is being made by Moses R. Ryttenberg, Assistant District Attorney, who announced yesterday that he will lay before the August additional Grand Jury a recommendation for taking control and licensing of taxicabs and hackmen out of the license Bureau and putting it in charge of the Police Department.

John O'Brien, in charge of the traffic division of the Police Department, has been asked for an opinion regarding the suggestion.

Mr. Ryttenberg said that the plan was drawn by Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb, who has found this practice common in European cities.

"Thorough and efficient control has always been necessary with hackmen," said Magistrate Cobb. "The transfer of the hack bureau to the Police Department could be done without great expense or trouble, abolishing the present inspectors, who would be in effect replaced by 10,000 policemen."
